

Reduced transport is selective forgetting

Validation is the assay that reveals which memory is adequate for the prediction being made.

validation listening stations

The validation objective is not a final scorecard; it is the experiment that asks which memory the observable needs.